

Assessing Public Health in Emergency Situations

SUMMER COURSE

JULY 1 - 12, 2019

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM

www.APHEs.be

 UCLouvain

Centre for Research on the Epidemiology of Disasters
CRED

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Objectives: To familiarize health professionals with epidemiological techniques to assess the health impacts of disasters and conflicts on affected communities in emergency situations.

Applicant profile: Students and professionals with training in public health, medicine, emergency response or related topics. Experience desirable in the humanitarian and emergency management sectors.

Registration: Application form available on www.aphes.be

Deadline: May 31, 2019

Fees: € 1,750 (discount available for NOHA and EMMPHID students and UCL Alumni)

Course fee covers coursework, printed materials, coffee breaks and lunches and a certificate of attendance from the Université catholique de Louvain.

Contact: For applications or more information please contact us at: contact@aphes.be

